

Inspiring families to travel

WHERE'S SHARON?

MEDIA KIT

Where's Sharon is a family travel resource and aims to help families travel smarter, cheaper and better. It's the most visited family travel blog in the world according to this list which is based on Google Analytics data.

Sharon and Joshua enjoy sharing their travels and tips in the hope of inspiring others to travel, regardless of their family situation.

Sharon and her husband, Joshua, travel the world with their young kids.

About Sharon and Joshua

Sharon Gourlay

In between trips, Sharon spent eight years working in the IT industry and then a year as a high school teacher before becoming a full time travel blogger, writer and internet marketer.

Sharon is the lead writer for Where's Sharon as well as an expert on SEO and is a TBEX* presenter on this topic. She has also presented at Prologger Training Event on affiliate marketing.

Sharon is passionate about travel and has visited over 90 countries. She loves sharing this passion with her kids and others.

Joshua Hutchison

When not travelling, Joshua works in the IT industry. He currently works as a web developer and an internet marketer.

Joshua is responsible for the technical side of Where's Sharon, as well as contributing content.

What is a travel blogger?

Travel bloggers are first and foremost travellers. They are passionate about travel and sharing this love with others. They can connect and interact with travellers in a way that traditional media cannot.

To do this effectively, they are also travel writers, photographers, editors, publishers, social media experts, marketers, sale representatives and website developers.

Why work with a travel blogger?

1. Travel bloggers know how to appeal to other travellers because they are travellers themselves. 81% of US online consumers say they trust advice from bloggers.
2. More people book their travel online than using any other method. Over 60% of travellers plan their trip on the internet. More than half of these people use reviews and 24% of people read travel blogs when planning a trip.
3. Social media has a strong influence on the travel that people book. Social media has been responsible for over half of travellers changing their travel plans.
4. Bloggers are influencers. They can promote your brand through a multi pronged approach using blog posts, social media and their network of other travel bloggers.

what our readers say

“ I love traveling but was nervous about taking our daughter overseas. Where's Sharon gave me some wonderful tips and a few laughs along the way. It gave me the push I needed to get over my fear of travelling with kids. Thanks to Where's Sharon, we are off to Malaysia and the Philippines next year.

“ Can I just let you know your information on Singapore is the most incredible "Travelling with Children in a city" information I've seen, and I have been continuously searching for almost 2 years. The detail level is exactly right, the information is current and relevant and you have enhanced our upcoming trip infinitely. The Singapore guide is nothing short of amazing - and I have been to Singapore 17 times in my life! Thanks a million
